The Irish Counter Revolution 1921-1936 Treatyite Politics and Settlement in Independent Ireland, John M Regan, 1999, Gill & Macmillan, Signed First Edition, First Printing, Hardback in D/J, as new condition. "In 1921, Michael Collins argued that the Anglo-Irish treaty offered nationalists the freedom to achieve freedom. In 1926, his successor Kevin O'Higgins went to London with a proposal to have the British monarch crowned king of a reunited Ireland. In 1933, General Eoin O'Duffy, leader of the Blueshirts, advocated a corporatist state on the Fascist Italian model, within a republican settlement. John Regan explains how such contrasting political views were reconciled within an evolving treatyite position. He argues that there existed elements of anti-democratic culture on both sides of the treaty divide, not least Collins himself. Based on ten year's research in archives in Ireland, Britain, France, and the USA, this is a radical reappraisal of the Irish Free State."

Causes for Concern Irish Politics, Culture and Society, Michael D Higgins, 2006, Liberties Press, First Edition, First Printing, Hardback in D/J, as new. "This contains an inspiring collection of writings and speeches made by Michael D Higgins over the course of more than three decades." (2)

Inis Meáin Images – Ten Days in August 1912, Henry Cecil Watson, 1999, 1st Edition, 1st Printing, Wolfhound Press, Hardback in D/J, excellent condition. "In August 1912 Henry Cecil Watson visited Inis Meain. Using a box camera, he took a series of pictures capturing forever the people and the landscape, and the interaction between the two. Published here for the first time is a selection of Watson's photographs. They are Striking images of the life of a community at a time when the people are seemingly unaware that their traditions and ways were on the brink of collapse." A Dark Day on the Blaskets, Micheál Ó Dubhshláine, 2003, Brandon, 1st edition, 1st printing, Hardback in D/J, as new. " This most evocative of stories is a portrait of a young woman and her times in 1909, but it is also an engrossing description of a place at a turning point in its cultural history." The Greening of a Nationalist. Michael McKeown, Signed by author inside front cover, 1986, Murlough Press, First Edition, First Printing, Hardback in D/J, excellent condition. The Genesis of Revolution, James Kelly, 1976, First Edition, softcover, excellent condition. James Kelly was a Captain in the Irish Army and was arrested and subsequently cleared in connection with the importation of arms during the Arms Crisis in 1970. Military Aspects of Ireland's Arms Crisis of 1969-70, Arms Crisis Series No.2, Angela Clifford, 2006, softcover, excellent condition. This book represents "a study of released Secret official documents, some 30 of which are reproduced here, revealing that the Irish Army was ordered to prepare to arm the Northern Ireland minority and to provide military training and to prepare for military operations in Northern Ireland. This policy lasted until mid-August 1969. When the Government changed tack a number of Ministers were dismissed and Captain James Kelly was arrested and accused of conspiring to illegally import arms. The documents in this book prove beyond doubt, however, that the arms importation was part of Government policy (3)
